SUNDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1868. THE NEGRO CONGRESSMAN. The Radicals have discovered another pretext to keep Menard, who claims to have been elected to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Col. Mann, of Louisiana, out of Congress. At the time of the death of Col. Mann he was the sitting member from the second district of Louisiana, but his seat was contested, and the question was undetermined, and is yet before the Committee on Elections. Should the House of Representatives decide that Col. Mann's contestant was entitled to the seat, Menard, would not be received, as he was elected to fill Mann's unexpired erm. Thus the Radicals have anther pretext for refusing to receive other officers of every kind, upon nd sit with a negro Congressman.

There was manifested on the first day of the assembling of the present session of Congress a strong disposition to have Georgia remanded to tor Trumbull, of Illinois, thinks of the condition of a conquered prov- this summary mode of forcing neince, with a Provisional Governor, to go again through the process of reconstruction, and the Radical Governor of that State has taken the lead in inciting Congress to take this step. Immediately after the Senate had been called to order, the presiding officer of that body presented a communication from Gov. Bullock, in wheih that conscientious stickler for "law and the forms of law" represents to Congress that the laws under which Georgia was to have been admitted to representation in Congress have not been fully executed, and setting forth the fact that candidates for the General Assembly who had received the highest number of votes were permitted to take seats, and participate in legislation, without regard to their eligibility-not having been required to take the oath of office prescribed by law. The and thus making confusion more con-Governor alleges that the result of this failure to execute the law has been to defeat the purposes which Congress had in view in passing the reconstruction acts, and, therefore, asks that such steps be taken as to Congress may seem proper. The dicts the assertion of Gov. Bullock touching the qualification of memthey were qualified according to the reconstruction laws and the fourteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States. He further reports that Gov. Bullock desired him to use his authority as military commander of the district and exclude members of the Legis lature who were his political opponents. Gen. Meade refused to de this, and now Bullock seeks to revenge himself upon a Legislature and a people who are opposed to him and his schemes, by having Congress interpose and remand the State to a territorial condition. When Mr. Sherman presented the credentials of Mr. Hill, one of the Scnators elect from Georgia, there was something of a flutter, and a good deal of talk about law, but Mr. Drake, of Missouri stated the real ground of objection to Mr. Hill's admission. He declared that "he had no personal objection to the gentleman whose credentials had been presented, but the question as to admitting him involved the greater question, whether the power of Congress over a reconstructed State ends the moment that State is recognized by either House as restored to her position in the bers of the Legislature, for he says ty to pass of hastening its accomplish Columbia raising the question as to the constitutionality of the legal tender act were placed on the dock-Union." And he advanced the opinion that "Congress still held its power over those States, and he should not vote for the admission of representatives from any of those States which sought to overthrow the supremacy of the loyal men; that he would "never be willing to allow these States to undo all they had done before being admitted; and that he "desired to call the attention of the country to this matter, and to insist upon the power of Congress to guarantee perpetua loyal supremacy in all those States. tract was made.
